Introduction

When this racing system was first shown to me I felt like a kid at Christmas it was bordering on magic, almost unbelievable.

I went away and cautiously gave it a try - with great success. It was everything I was told it would be – the ultimate racing system.

The guy who showed me how this works used to refer to it as his ‘Life’ system. His theory was that the business of making money out of horse racing is little different to the pattern and principles you live by. There are good days and bad days, provided you realise this in advance and plan for them then the bad days would be no more damaging than a burst pipe or catching a common cold. Whilst both are inconvenient and uncomfortable they’re fairly easy to survive because you know they are resolvable problems and you work around them until things are fixed.

The BIG secret, he told me, to winning consistently from betting is not finding winners; it’s having a definite, disciplined, PLAN to work through.

Most people who bet have no plan, they just ‘bet’. They win and they increase their stakes out of greed, they lose and they increase their stakes out of desperation. They have no idea what the long term implications are of doing either – they just do it.

He likened it to an appointment for a job interview that, in the perfect world, is a one hour drive away. If your only expectation is to jump in your totally reliable car, full of petrol, drive unhindered to the interview, have all the perfect answers for the interviewer, and get offered the job right there, then your chances of being in total control are fairly limited.

If however you begin to make allowances for traffic problems, needing fuel, perhaps the car breaking down, parking problems, and the interview going so badly the interviewer tells you ‘no thanks’ there and then your chances of being in total control are fairly high.

Obviously you don’t want to have to spend money on car repairs, train fares, and be told you’re not wanted but if those possibilities were in your thinking at the beginning and you planned for them, you’d survive.

Knowing what to expect and how to handle things whether they are going well, or not so well, is a minimum requirement before you place a single penny piece on a horse.

This guy also told me something I didn’t believe (probably because I didn’t want to believe it) and it was only later I realised how true his words were.

He told me nobody would ever become rich using his system, which is why he was happy to tell me about it and agreed to allow me to write about it.

The system would allow anyone to make respectable amounts of cash but the whole idea of accumulating the kind of cash required to buy houses, expensive cars, and villas, was totally misconceived.
Introduction

This puzzled me a fair bit at first and I had a real problem grasping why I wouldn’t be able to use this system to make hundreds of thousands of pounds – after all it was unbelievably successful and the money I was prepared to use to ‘up’ the stakes was bookies money. The risk to me was minimal and I set off to make my millions.

A few weeks later I was back. The system had worked perfectly, I was using bookies money to bet with, yet I was still making the same amount of money day after day. It was like having a money-making machine on my kitchen table that only had one speed - £50 a day! To say I was becoming frustrated was a total understatement.

The crazy thing about the situation was I could see what was happening yet there was nothing I could do about it. It was then that I received perhaps the most important lesson about gambling I’d ever had. It’s such an important lesson that I’ve dedicated the first chapter to it and I urge you to read it well and commit it to memory; it is possibly the most important part of this booklet.

Some people have what it takes to make money out of gambling, most don’t. When you’ve finished reading you should have a much better idea which side of things you sit on. Learn from this information and follow it on paper for a while – see exactly what it can do if you can apply the principles you’re going to read about.

Thanks to the guy who gave me this I make enough cash each week to make a real difference to my life, I’m sure if you can take this on board you can do the same BUT, before you attempt to use the system make sure you read and understand the basic principles of gambling, there is no short cut, no way around you must learn these lessons well or you will NEVER be successful.

Many thanks for buying this booklet and I sincerely hope you have as much fun and make as much money out of it as I do.

Regards

James Fitzmaurice
Financial management is about one thing – money. How much money you have and how you use it. The first thing you are going to have to do in order to follow any kind of betting strategy or system is set aside a bank. Whilst this is a relatively simple thing to do there are two very important things to get right.

The first thing to get right about your betting bank is your attitude towards it. Firstly you have to get it firmly placed in your head that however good a system appears to be it is still gambling and whatever bank you set aside you MUST be fully prepared to lose every single penny of it. The possibility of losing your betting bank is part of the planning and you need to have a plan to work around it. It could be, you’re prepared to start again with a new bank, or it may be you give up – whatever it is decide now, and stick with it.

You need to place yourself in the position of losing your bank and find out how you feel. If it’s no more than an acceptable risk of doing what you do then you’re in good shape to move on. If it scares or worries you, if it means some household bill isn’t going to get paid or your standard of living is going to be effected then you’re not in such good shape and it’s time to think long and hard as to whether ‘betting for ‘profit’ is really for you.

Your betting bank is ‘working capital’ for your business of betting. This means it is not available for dipping into to buy groceries, pay bills, or go to the pub. And as we’ve already said, it’s not available for the occasional ‘fun’ bet. If it can’t be that way for you then again think long and hard if this is really for you. Betting strategies often fail for the same reasons new businesses fail – lack of capital. In simple terms that means running out of money.

I like to think in ‘points’ when it comes to the financial side of betting, it means I can speak in exactly the same words to someone who has £20 to risk or another person who has £1000. A point is a point, whether its 10p or £10 – you make that decision for yourself, but make sure you have enough of them. When backing I suggest at least 500 points, for a long term business.

The betting strategy this system uses requires a fair amount of points to run comfortably. When I first began following it for real I used just 10p per point and began with a bank of £30 that’s 300 points. At the end of the second week I’d built that bank up to £97 (or 970 points). I believe a bank of 500 points is sufficient for flat staking. If you decide to use a staking plan, a bank of 1000 points is so comfortable I can almost 99.9% guarantee you will never go bankrupt with this method.

As of today, I’ve never found a time where the system ‘wipes out’ more than 30 points in a whole day unless you use the stop loss. You can hit -30points. As you can see a 300 point bank allows for 10 days of no winners. It isn’t going to happen, it’s IMPOSSIBLE. Obviously it’s a different story using a staking plan for aggressive/non-aggressive recovery but the results we show are based on flat staking. I don’t suggest chasing losses.
FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

This is the level of bank you need to be thinking about, 500 points. If you have less than £1000 as a starting bank then you have two options. First option, reduce your bank to 300 points and invest £600 into Betfair. Betfair uses minimum bets of £2 so that’s the minimum I suggest to use. The second option is to do as I did, and start using a bookmaker’s account. You can place even 2p bets with some firms!

A point can be worth whatever you like but I can tell you now, don’t bother going too high. This system can produce a daily profit of between 1 and 20 points so if you opt for too big a value you’ll have problems getting bets on. Detachment – No Room for Emotion. OK, you’re almost ready to be let loose on how the system works but before that I need to cover the biggest problem of them all – emotion.

I started with a £30 bank, in fact it had once been a £10 bank and I’d had a string of successes using each way doubles and built it up to just over £30. In my mind it wasn’t my money, I’d won it, so I wasn’t attached to it. Also, without meaning to sound boastful, it was only thirty quid – a take away for two, a night in the pub, six bottles of Tesco wine, not ‘life changing’ amounts of money here.

So I was happy to follow the plan in a completely disciplined manner. If I lost thirty quid I lost thirty quid – it was worth that to see if this thing would work for me. I was the model follower, doing only what the plan told me to do.

As I’ve already said at the end of the second week I’d changed that £30 into £97 and it was starting to look like ‘my’ money, the kind of money that would pay a bill, buy some clothes, pay for a weeks shopping, a sit down meal for the whole family. Two weeks earlier I had no hesitation about losing thirty quid but a hundred pounds (in round numbers) was beginning to look a lot different.

So it was that I found myself ‘taking my foot off the gas so to speak when I saw the bank being used – FOR THE PURPOSE IT WAS DESIGNED FOR, working capital. It was not money to be used for buying food, drink, or nights out, it was money to be used to finance a betting strategy. But I stopped seeing it that way.
Imagine the feelings when that bank becomes £1000 and it’s nearing Christmas or a birthday, or some unexpected bill drops through the door?

There will come a point where your bank will reach a level in which you can withdraw a wage for yourself each month, until that time comes. Be disciplined. The crazy thing was that I can never remember a time when more than about 10% of my bank was at risk, and yet all I could see was the potential for zero. I’m sure you too will arrive at a time when you simply can’t place the next bet and finishing the day with a loss, when the next bet saved the day! (This happens a lot)

And then of course you’re full of regret at not having been able to stick to the plan, and you become angry with yourself. Sometimes you’ll find yourself taking it into the evening, even to bed with you – the disappointment of not doing what it is you should have done.

You may even find yourself one day thinking it would have been better to lose your entire bank than not having won enough through not following the plan. Strange little demons will sing and dance inside your head telling you all kinds of things – and you must learn to control them.

Unless you are experienced at doing so already you must learn to detach yourself from the emotion. The bank is no more than working capital, if you lose it you lose it – you’re prepared for that and will deal with it. Betting is just a job, some horses win and some lose – it matters not, a loser is no more than an inevitable part of betting.

One thing I can assure you is that while you follow this on paper as part of your preparation it’s easy to make all sorts of decisions. Stick to the plan; make sure all your bases are covered. And you should never get to the end of the day with a scenario that was not already thought of and planned.
Selecting and Placing the Bets
About the only things you need to get going in addition to the ‘soft’ skills we’ve already covered is a betting bank, access to The Racing Post ONLINE, somewhere to place the bets (Internet or shop) and the time it takes to use the system.

Racing Post Free to join here – http://www.racingpost.co.uk – This is where I get all the proper selections every day I use the system. You could of course use a publication more suitable to yourself, but for the purpose of results we will use the Racing Post Betting Forecast.

I use the Internet and with a bit of practice you can operate the system while you work on other things, and even find time to make yourself a cup of coffee while it’s all happening. If you prefer to visit the bookies then to be honest it’s easier but I’m a technology man and I like sitting at my PC shifting cash around and updating my results list. Either way I suggest you start with a 1000 point bank if you want to use some sort of staking plan and a 500 point bank for flat stakes.

It takes me about 40 minutes to get ready to operate this system.
We don’t use the Evening meetings, this is time to relax and enjoy life, but you could just as easily use the system in the evenings during the summer, or use the system through the afternoon and evening. It’s all down to you to make the decision.

We use Saturdays but they are difficult with races sometimes overlapping others. If you decide to use it on a Saturday be careful as there can be too many races to make it work. You do need to be available from the first race onwards until you’ve made the profit you have set out to make, unless you decide to back all selections during the day.

A good plan for a Saturday is to split your bank into 3 separate banks and do the same for the race card and use 1 bank for each at reduced stakes obviously.

We have two ways we use the method, (Staking plan 1) we stop at first blood which means when we have made at least 1 points profit for the day we stop. The other plan is (Staking plan 2) we bet on all qualifying races throughout the afternoon and run the system continuously regardless of profit and loss on any particular day and look at the results at the end of each week and change the staking accordingly.

Finding Selections
You now have to go through the racing cards at Racing Post website and list, in order of start time, each race in order. Depending on which plan you choose to use you need only to list the first 10 races as you can usually stop [first blood] within 10 races. If you decide to bet continuously then list all races for the day.

The next job is to go to the betting forecast in the RACING POST for each race and find the horses LISTED third, fourth, and fifth favourite in the betting Forecast. If there is more than 3 horses listed in those 3 positions then we use the selection that has the best Racing post Rating RPR.
Please see the example above.

As you can see here in the above image of the Racing Post, We disregard the 1st and 2nd Favourite in the betting forecast. If there are more than 2 horses that occupy the 1st and 2nd favourite positions we take the selection that has the best Racing post rating. 99% of the time it will be easy to disregard the first two in the forecast and move on to the 3 selections we are interested in.

As you can see above, the 7/4 favourite and 5/1 2nd fav are clearly recognisable as the top two in the forecast but sometimes it might not be as cut and dry and we go by Racing post Ratings. The highest rated become the disregarded favourites.

So we now see that the 13/2 selection and the 6/1 selection are clearly 3rd and 4th Favs in the forecast and become selections automatically. As you can see there are two 7/1 horses occupying the 5th Fav position. We now check the RPR (Racing Post Rating).

It is clear beneath the forecast in the RPR tab that Mrs Overall becomes our third selection.

The idea is that you are going to begin betting on the first race of the day, betting on all three selections per race, with one point of your bank on each until you make a pre determined sum of money for that day – then you stop, but that’s If you choose to use (staking plan 1) You may decide to bet every race in the afternoon, which can also be very profitable. See Staking plan 2.

The advised pre-determined profit is a minimum of 1 point. For [Staking plan 1], you can of course change this to what you’re comfortable with.

Occasionally you’ll find one of your selections may get backed down to favourite and what was a 9.00 shot in the morning on betfair turns out to be as short as 4.5. But on the other side of the coin I’ve had winners that were forecast at 10.00 end up winning at much greater odds.
The Particulars

★ Check that there are at least 5 runners.

★ If at the time of betting one of your 3 horses has been withdrawn whether it be 5 minutes before the race or 5 hours before the race you will use the next horse in the Betting forecast list.

★ You can look for your bet from the time your last race finished until the next race starts, if it qualifies at any point in that time. The bets are bet! Unless there is no physical time to put the bets on. Your first bet of the day can be placed up to 1 hour before racing starts.

★ We ignore All Weather racing if it is 6 furlongs or less. All other All weather races qualify.

★ We Ignore IRISH racing.

★ If the favourite or second favourite are withdrawn nothing changes we still use our same horses from the forecast.

★ The shortest price of your 3 selections should be priced at 4.0 or longer to ensure at least 1 point profit if we win race. If one of your selections is pondering around the 4.0 mark we would definitely go with the selection. Use 3.90 as a maximum lowest!

★ If the favourite is 2.9 or shorter, our shortest priced selection should be no more than 4 points longer - suggests market thinks we have a realistic chance. This would mean we would want our shortest selection of the three to be around 7.6 or shorter at the time of placing a bet.

★ We don’t bet at say 2 minutes before the off on all races, we bet when a race qualifies. This can be at different intervals leading up to the race; no race can be the same, it could be 4 minutes one race and 6 minute’s the next. Get your bet on as soon as possible.

★ If you decide to use Staking plan 1 and stop at first blood, we suggest using a 15 point stop loss which will let you go up to 5 races without a winner.

Staking Strategy 1

This method is flat stakes but you stop at First Blood, First Blood means you stop when a winning bet puts you into at least 1 point profit. You may settle for a profit of 0.9 points or break even especially after a long day of favourites winning many of the races.

If we reach 5 races and still no winner (-15 points) you should stop betting, and take the loss. This is again your own personal choice, many days we have had 5 losers only to find the next 5 races we have had enough winners to wipe out the earlier losses.

Staking Strategy 2

Bet every single race that qualifies, I suggest a very good sized bank. This has proved to be a great little earner. We look at profits on a weekly basis; we don’t judge our profit from day to day.

If it interests you the average odds winners for this system are 10.00 Whilst it sounds a little ‘hectic’ it’s actually quite easy to operate after time, the only time you may have to juggle a race ‘out of place’ is if a race is delayed and runs into the next race. In this situation, it is just unfortunate and I usually carry on placing my 3 bets on the next race. But it is personal choice on what to do. This is your business and you have to plan every aspect.

If you’re a shop customer then you could simply fill out a betting slip for each race and keep them in chronological order ready to use. On the Internet I open up 2 browser windows (if you’re non-technical all that means is I click on Internet Explorer twice and have two open at the same time) and log one onto The Racing Post website where I can even see a running commentary on the race and get ‘real time’ results, and the other one is logged onto my on-line betting account. I just flip between the two to ‘watch’ what’s going on and place bets.

There are a lot of parameters with the system that are and can be personal choice. These filters are only as a guide and what we have found to be most successful. This is a Seed that has sprouted and know I pass it on to you. All our results on the website follow the e-book rules.

What your aim should be is to make 33% profit on your bank, once per month, and as I have proved to myself this is easily achievable sticking to 1 point on each selection, at the end of each month you re-assess your bank and find your new 1 point stake amount.
CONCLUSION

First of all you must be comfortable with everything we discussed in the E-book, this entire System is based on the ‘a winner is due’ theory and whilst it hasn’t let me down and I’m having a hard time finding a period where it would have – this type of system requires that your mindset is geared to the idea that you could lose the whole bank, but if you follow my recommendation I very much doubt that will ever happen, but this is gambling after all!

The upside of that is that the rewards are pretty impressive.

Unlike betting on favourites where your profits are small and a couple of losers can easily leave you at a loss, when your winners turn up at odds of 8/1; 10/1; 12/1; 14/1; 16/1; and even 25/1 and 40/1; it’s much easier to reverse a negative position.

For some people the biggest disadvantage is the amount of time needed to operate the system but, business is usually ‘done and dusted’ within an hour or so each day if using [Staking Plan 1] so it’s not as bad as it might seem.

Most bookies allow a minimum of 10p stake so it is possible to get off and running on a modest bank (remember, I started on £30) but make sure you have sufficient ‘points’ (even if a point is 5p). If you don’t, and run out of cash after a few bets, don’t check the results – you’ll be gutted.

Don’t forget
(or avoid) to follow it on paper until you’re familiar with it, this really is important. This is a pretty ‘fast moving’ system, you need to know what you’re doing, and learning ‘on the job’ could end up being expensive.

The attraction of this is that you can win a decent amount of cash fairly quickly. I do very well out of it and it’s an exciting system to operate but don’t forget this is a ‘winner is due’ type of system and there’s always the very real chance that one day the winner won’t come.

Don’t bet with money you can’t afford to lose (not just with this, that’s a GOLDEN RULE) and don’t get carried away – if you build up to a decent bank and pull down £50 - £100 a day then you’re well ahead of the crowd.

My final word

Enjoy your betting and stay in control, if your betting is taking over your thoughts at every waking hour – STOP – it’s not worth it.

Many thanks for being with me, the very best of luck, and I sincerely hope you get as much out of this as I do.

Regards

Jon was able to provide an unbiased review on a few occasions.

The Life System - Highly Recommended!

6th December, 2008 - Posted by Jon -

The Life System is a very straightforward backing system for which you only need to refer to the Racing Post to obtain selections each day. The selection process will take you no more than 10 minutes.

You do not need to study form or analyse horse data and the system includes staking advice about stopping at “First Blood” (i.e. stopping when in profit for the day) and having a Stop Loss figure as well. The sales website is not wonderful but really, who cares if the system is able to show consistent profits?

I trialled the system for 29 days between 20 October and 18 November when it produced no less than 40.32 points net profit and that includes two shocking days on 17 and 18 November which knocked 50 points off in just those two days. I have kept detailed analysis of all races during the trial period which can be made available to you.

Now, let me be clear, this system will not produce profits like this every day/week/month and is probably not to be recommended to the faint hearted. It will not mean you can give up the day job next week either, but I can confirm that I have made exactly the same profits as advertised on the sales web site. No, that’s not quite true.........If you ignore the staking advice you can make more!

In fact considerably more, around 104 points!

However, if this system appeals to you, you must accept that there will be bad days as well as good ones. I also believe the system works better on soft and heavy going which may partly explain why All Weather racing is not recommended.

The e-book also includes sound advice about financial management and emphasises that the system must be used with a stop loss to ensure your bank is not wiped out by chasing losses. The system author recommends a stop loss which I consider is too high and I recommend you adopt a stop loss that is within your personal comfort zone. I generally use a stop loss that is half that suggested in the e-book. The author also recommends using level stakes and not to use loss recovery ladders etc.
You know how frustrating it can be when the short priced favourite you backed is beaten by some unknown outsider which all the form suggested cannot win. Or, perhaps, you have laid a middle priced horse only to watch it unexpectedly get the win by a nose. There have been many occasions when those runners are a winning Life System selection.

In one of my first races, when I started using the system, I watched with bated breath as “my horse” Sea Cliff romped home at Huntingdon where I had been matched on Betfair at 28! An event I will not forget for quite some time. Would I have normally selected that horse to back at such a long price? Most likely not! And this is not an isolated incident as the detailed results can confirm.

So, as long as you are willing to accept bad days as well as good days and if you enjoy the strong probability of a roller coaster ride whilst at the same time bringing a bit of FUN back to your betting, then The Life System might just be for you!

If you take the plunge and buy the system through New Horse Racing systems, my personal advice on how to improve profits and minimise losses is always available.

Cheers Jon
The Life System - you either love it or hate it!

I absolutely LOVE this system which is very simple to operate and which brings a lot of excitement to your betting activity.

Don’t be put off by the doom and gloom merchants who have been critical of the system (mainly because it is impossible to back test the selections) …..The Life System continues to produce extraordinary profits month to month and usually on a day to day basis although you will get losing days from time to time. That’s why the system includes a lot of information about money management and recommends using a stop loss.

The system has easy rules and you don’t have to study form, jockeys, trainers or any other stats. However, it is preferable to be able to follow the racing on Betfair if possible.

I will report each day’s activity and profit for the foreseeable future. Each bet is 3 points of the betting bank.

REVIEW RESULTS

After 15 days, the results are very impressive. Our net betting points profit (net of 5% Betfair commission) stands at an incredible +111.31 points.

If following the system rule of stopping after first blood, we would have stopped after Bet 2 with +1.99 points bringing the system total to +52.72 points.
27 April - Day 17

This seemed to be a fairly neutral day although we did add a further 7.89 points to our total profit. As I have mentioned before, this system can spoil you when you feel nonchalant about single figure gains! For most systems, a profit of 1 or 2 points per day would be considered good!

28 April - Day 18

A frustrating day where so many races were disqualified by system rules and with most of our winners being short priced, it was no surprise that we made a small loss on the day. The longest priced winner managed to finish in a dead heat thereby halving our profit!

If we had followed the system rule of stopping at first blood, we would have stopped after Bet 3 with +1.44 points.

If following the system rule of stopping at first blood, we would have stopped after Bet 3 at +3.82 points, bring the overall system total to +59.79 points.

03 May - Day 20

I have been away for the last three days, so was unable to monitor and post results but started again today…and what a day it’s been! The day would have been even better if one of our selections at Hamilton had not been beaten by a nose with a Betfair SP of 31.1!!

Profit / Loss on the day +46.77 points Profit / Loss to date +176.45 points

If following the system rule of stopping at first blood, we would have stopped after Bet 3 with +13.68 points bringing the system overall total to +73.47 points.

Some reviewers have been very critical of The Life System and are quick to dismiss the system as not being profitable in the long term. Personally, I do not know of any other backing or laying system that has produced such spectacular profits in just a few weeks.

The system author will shortly be releasing a second version of the system with additional filters that, in my opinion, will definitely improve both the strike rate and profitability.

Until that happens, I suppose we’ll just have to be content with making 176 points in 3 weeks!
04 May - Day 21

Having built up a very healthy profit level, it is inevitable that we will have bad days and despite picking up 8 winners from 19 qualifying races (42% strike rate) we suffered from short prices resulting in our stop loss being reached after Bet 13 (Typical!!)

Profit / Loss on the day -15.36 points Profit / Loss to date +161.09 points

Interestingly, the reason for using a Stop Loss with the system was high lighted today because if we had continued to bet on the remaining qualifying races, our loss on the day would have been -23.77 points. As it was we reached our stop loss at -15.36 points.

If following the system rule of stopping at first blood, we would have stopped after Bet 5 at +2.25 points, bring the system total to a very healthy +75.72 points.
05 May - Day 22

Well, today got us back on track with a comfortable profit of just over 16 points. You have to accept that the system can and does operate in a see-saw fashion at times but I still maintain that over the mid to long term, net profits will grow faster than most other backing systems in the market.

Bet 1 Chepstow 14.10 Gross Prophet +7.13 points

Bet 21 Catterick 20.35 Cotswolds +2.92 points

Following the system rule, we only needed the first bet to achieve first blood with +7.13 points bring that overall total to + 82.85 points.

Profit / Loss on the day +16.33 points Profit / Loss to date +177.42 points
06 May - Day 23

Around 3pm this afternoon, I began to wonder whether The Life System had found the Holy Grail of picking a winner in every qualifying race for the day. Five straight wins and a profit of almost 20 points at that stage started the shivers!

But, unfortunately, the system was just toying with our emotions (!!) and soon corrected the position although we still ended up marginally in profit.

If following the system rule of stopping at first blood, we would have stopped after the first bet with +5.09 points bringing the system rule total to +87.94 points.

SUMMARY

If your stake was £10 per point, you could have picked up £880 or £1,790…. Just do the maths for stakes of £20 or £25 per point! Back in a week or two for a live day to day trial of The Life System.

Cheers Jon
